London, August 22.

Yesterday came in the Mail from Holland of Tuesday last.

From the Harl. and Amst. Courants, dated Aug. 29.
Vienna, August 16.

ON the 13th Instant, their Imperial Majesties came to the Palace here from the Favotita, in order to give Audience to Count Flemming, Minister Plenipotentiary of the King of Poland, Elector of Saxony, to which he was conducted with the following Ceremonies: At 9 in the Morning several Noblemen, who were to compliment the said Minister went to the House where he lodged, with the Coaches of the Pope's Nuncio, and of the Bishop of this City. An Hour after followed Count Oropesa, Lord of the Bed-chamber to the Emperour, with 2 Coaches drawn by 6 Horses each, to receive his Excellency on the Emperour's Part, and to conduct him to his Audience, to which they proceeded in the following Order: First came one of the Emperour's Coaches drawn by 6 Horses, in which were the Counts Wackerbarth and Hoym, M. Braun, and Count Schaniawsky: Then came 24 Footmen and 8 Heiducks in rich Livery; the Emperour's Body-Coach, in which sat Count Flemming, Count Oropesa sitting backwards; 4 Pages in Polish Drels, 4 in Saxon Drels, and 4 others in his Excellency's Livery, preceded his Body Coach, after which came the Coaches of the Pope's Nuncio, and of the Bishop of Vienna, in each of which sat 4 Gentlemen of Count Flemming's Retinue; they were followed by three of his Excellency's Coaches drawn by 6 Horses each. Being arrived at Court, the Emperour's Body Coach, and that of Count Flemming entered the Court-Yard, where the Guards were under Arms; his Excellency was received at the Head of the Stairs by the Prince of Schwarzenburg, Great Marshal of the Court, who with Count Oropesa, lead him up and conducted him through the Apartments, where the Archers and Halberdiers stood ranged on both Sides; in the great Hall he was received by the Prince of Lichtenstein, and in the Anti-Chamber by the Great Chamberlain Count Sintendorf, from whence he was conducted to the Emperour's Audience; his Excellency approaching the Imperial Throne, and making three Bows, the Emperour advanced some Steps, and took off his Hat, which he soon put on again: The Polish Minister having made his Compliment, covered himself, and demanded the Archduchess Maria Josepha in Marriage for the Electoral Prince: After which, the Nobility of his Retinue were admitted to kiss his Imperial Majesty's Hand; then his Excellency retired, making three Bows, as before, and was conducted by the Prince of Lichtenstein to the Back Stairs, from whence Count Oropesa led him to the Apartment of the Empress, to whom he was conducted by her Great Steward Count Gardona; from thence he went to the Empress Mother, and afterwards to the Empress Dowager Amelia, to the latter of which he repeated his former Demand: Her Majesty consented, and sent for the Archduchess, who appearing, the Empress her Mother asked her, whether she was willing to consent on her Part, and was answered with a Courtesy: Upon which the Polish Minister having demanded Leave, Count Wackerbarth approached with the Electoral Prince's Picture richly set in Diamonds, and presented the Archduchess with it. And so his Excellency was re-conducted to his House with the same Ceremony. He was entertained at Dinner by the Prince of Lichtenstein; in the Evening he made great Illuminations at his House, and two Spouts were set a running with Red and White Wine for the Populace, among whom a great Quantity of Gold and Silver Species were thrown to the Value of 12000 Florins. Yesterday he gave a splendid Entertainment to several of the Nobility of both Sexes, which was concluded with a Ball.

From the Hague Courant, dated Aug. 30.

Hambourg, Aug. 25. Letters from Copenhagen of the 22d Instant say, that the King of Denmark having held a Privy Council at Fredericksburg for three several Days, at which the Swedish Collonel Adlerfeld assisted, returned that Day to Copenhagen. That the said Collonel has since had an Express from his Court, whose Dispatches are kept private. It was reported, that Collonel Lewenhaupt had received Orders to prepare for a certain Journey, as it is believed to Sweden. Of the Danish Forces in Norway, 2 Regiments were already arrived in Zealand, viz. that of the Queen, and another of Prince Christian, the one of which was to winter at Copenhagen, and the other at Elsinore. Two more were said to have landed at Flakstrand in Jutland, in which Province they were to take their Quarters. The whole Danish Squadron was expected from Norway in the Sound with the first fair Wind, and the Men of War were to join the Squadron in the Baltick, commanded by Vice-Admiral Paulsen. That it was hoped Admiral Norris would shortly sail to the Baltick, in order to act in Conjunction with the Danish and Swedish Squadrons, and to observe the Motions of the Russian Fleet on the Swedish Coast. It was confirmed from Norway, that the Danes had suffered great Loss in the Attack of Elfsburg, especially with regard to their Shipping, the Frigate called the Assistance or Hesperin, having been blown up by a Bomb, by which Accident the Captain and many of the Men were killed. There is Advice from Stockholm, that the Russians commit great Cruelties along the Coast of Sweden; where they have burned Norweping, Nyckoping and Jonkoping, 3 considerable Towns. They seized all Handicraftsmen, especially those who work in the Iron Mines, whom they carry on board their Fleet to transport them to Russia. The Swedish Army under the Command of General Ducker is encamped between Waxholm and Stockholm, and a Detachment of 4000 Horses are continually marching up and down to observe the Russians. It is added, that the Czar has sent M. Tolstoy his Privy Counsellour to Stockholm, to declare to the Queen and the Senate, that he was still ready to conclude a Peace with Sweden, even upon the Foot as it had been projected at Aland; but in case they should not accept of those Proposals, he threatens the Kingdom with an entire Ruin.
